

Creating a Collaborative Learning Environment via TLSDDM

30 PARTICIPANTS ONLY

Who should attend

- Junior Lecturers
- University faculty who were not professionally trained to be teachers

7 JUNE 2012
8.30 A.M – 1.00 P.M
EDC UUM

Synopsis

Reality check would reveal that most, if not all faculty members of non-teacher training institutions, are not professionally trained. They became "teachers by accident", that is, they have no formal training as professional educators. Cognizant of this fact, this seminar-workshop on creating a collaborative learning environment by applying the concept of TLSDDM, hopefully will make these educators more aware of the needs of their learners, be more learner-centered, conscious of keeping the collaborative spirit alive in their students in order to give more meaning to teaching-learning experiences/encounters, thus helping them become more effective catalysts and/or channels of change.

Objective

To Help Teachers Create A Collaborative Learning Environment Towards An Enjoyable And More Meaningful Teaching-Learning Encounters.

Facilitator

Prof. Dr. Cristina G. Gallato
