Synopsis

The challenge of sustaining productive thinking sets the culture of inquiry alive across learning communities, particularly in higher institutions of learning. The practitioners' skillful use of questions continuously unfolds the essence (meaning and depth) of intellectual interchanges. Within the same context, collaborative inquiry emerges, bracing the community of learners to value questions and model rightfully the art of intentional questioning in a climate of trust and mutual respect. This culture, to be nurtured, calls for the refinement of the practitioner's questioning repertoire.

Workshop coverage

1. Questioning questions
2. Building quality questions
3. Engaging into equitable questioning
4. Making the values of inquiry explicit

Learning outcomes

At the end of the session, participants should be able to:

1. Examine the types/structure, purpose, and relevance of questions
2. Extract quality questions from current questioning repertoire
