

examples for postgraduate programs:

- The MBA program competes for the most talented and committed working professionals worldwide.
- The executive MBA program draws mid-level managers sponsored by large corporations throughout Southeast Asia.
- Master's level programs are structured to provide business career preparation for students whose undergraduate education is not in business. Undergraduate business majors may substitute advanced study for some program requirements.